Happy Spring, Dear Ones!

Our worship on May 19 was beyond fabulous, don't you think? Between Music Sunday and Holy Communion, it was truly memorable. The only problem was that it left only a few minutes for the sermon. Which is a problem! But not since we have this excellent newsletter.

To make up for the missing sermon, I'd like to share with you some excerpts from "Presbyterian Outlook" editor Jill Duffield from that week. I had wanted to share them anyway, so this is the perfect chance.

The Lectionary for that day – the fifth Sunday of Easter, were: Acts 11:1-18, Psalm 148, Revelation 21:1-6, John 13:31-35.

"Nothing remains untouched or unchanged in the wake of Jesus being raised from the dead, and no one's preferences or pre-conceived notions of divine parameters will prevent the Triune God from making all things new...

"In this Easter season, when old divisions and ancient evils and all-too-persistent suffering bombard our newsfeeds and perhaps invades our daily living, how do those of us who follow a Risen Lord live in the light of Christ? Be salt and light? Stewards of the mysteries of God? Ambassadors of reconciliation?

"Pray. Listen for the Spirit. Heed divine instructions, even when they counter sacred commandments of the past. Step by step, tell what God has done, especially to those angered by this convention upending, holy in breaking. Speak of the visions, the new life in Christ, the big and the small signs of hope, grace and mercy. Love one another...

"....Step by step telling about the work of the Spirit you witnessed and experienced, being heard and praising God together. This is how reconciliation happens and acrimony fades. Loving one another, tangibly, daily, sometimes sacrificially, this is how the world will know that the home of God is among mortals and that we are followers of Jesus Christ.

Summer Schedules

Worship begins at 10:00 a.m.

“...The Spirit blows where it wills and nothing and no one can stop the resurrection, the healing, new-life giving power it brings....”

“...People pray. See visions. Follow the leadings of the Spirit. Tell others about it. Love one another and witness God's new thing come to fruition, one meal, one story, one stunned moment of silence, one outburst of praise, one glimpse of hope, one sliver of light, one act of love at a time. See, nothing will hinder God making all things new.”

Maybe in a little box:

Many, many thanks....

...to sweet Sue Beighley for her lovely hand-made gifts to women of the congregation on Mother's Day of fabric facial tissue holders, complete with tissues!

Blessings, Pastor Robin
